The Drift is hiring! We're looking for editors who can efficiently shepherd argumentative essays from the pitch stage to their final form.

Applicants must have:

- At least 5 years of experience working in publications
- At least 3 years in a role focused primarily on editing
- Significant familiarity with The Drift and the kinds of essays we publish

We're hoping to expand our team, and we're open to new part-time and full-time roles. Compensation will be highly dependent on both experience and time commitment, and will range from per issue stipends to $40-90k salaries with benefits.

If you'd like to be considered, please send a cover letter, resume, and five links to argumentative essays on which you were the main editor to jobs@thedriftmag.com. For two of these, write a paragraph or so narrating the editing process; at least one should be an essay on which you executed a significant structural edit. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis. We're looking to make hires as soon as possible.

The Drift is an equal-opportunity employer. We will not discriminate against any employee or applicant on the basis of age, color, disability, gender, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status.